"Charming with a side of Creepy" The Georgia Straight (Vancouver fringe)

"A lot of fun to watch." Four Stars Winnipeg Free Press (Winnipeg fringe)

"Sharply funny"... "Some of life's tougher punch lines"... "A quality solo show"
FringeReview (Edinburgh fringe)

The Play: The Chronic Single's Handbook is a one-man show by Randy Ross about a chronically-single guy who travels the world hoping to change his luck with love.

Remember Eat, Pray, Love? This is nothing like it. The story begins in Boston and goes astray in Greece, South Africa, and Asia. Along the way, audiences are exposed to the stories "Domination for Dummies" and "One Day at The Curious Finger Body Spa."

The one-hour show has been featured at fringe festivals in the U.S., Canada, and Edinburgh, Scotland. Adult situations, adult language, and more adult situations.

The Performer: Randy Ross is a Boston-area writer and story-teller. His comedic novel, God Bless Cambodia, will be published in 2017 by The Permanent Press, a publisher of literary fiction. His short stories, erotica, and humor have appeared in The Drum, Black Heart Magazine, and ForTheGirls.com, a porn site for women.

In 2007, Ross took a four-month, solo trip around the world and learned to say in three languages: "Speak English?" "Got Pepto-Bismol?" and "Where is the evacuation helicopter?" His show and novel were inspired by the trip.
